INTERESTING WIFE OF SIAMESE ENVOY

Lady Prabha Karavongse.

Washington, D. C., June 23.—One of the most interesting families among the foreign diplomats in this city is that of Thya Prabha Karavongse, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary from Siam. Lady Karavongse, wife of the new minister, with her son and daughter, have gone to New Hampshire, where the legation will remain during the hot months. The minister and his family arrived in New York on Nov. 23, 1913. Miss Saowapha Prabha, the daughter, and her brother, Vilas, have been attending school in Washington, and they speak rather fluently. The girl is almost a "grown-up." The boy is a bright little fellow with big black eyes. Both are great favorites with the other little official children here.

The Siamese are Mongolians of the Thai stock. The language is an Indo-Chinese monosyllabic tongue, but Master Vilas is accomplishing wonders with the English language as spoken in Washington.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

The cracking of a door may be instantly stopped by rubbing the hinge with a piece of soap. It does not spoil the looks of the paint as if oil were used.

To keep coffee pot sweet put a tablespoonful of baking soda into it. Fill it two-thirds full of water and let it boil for an hour. Then rinse very thoroughly. If this is done about once a week the pot will always smell fresh and clean.

If the odor of paint does not agree with you, try eating onions. They are a good antidote and prevents nausea or other ill effects.

Sala, a la Russe—Peel six tomatoes, remove thin slices from the top of each, and take out the seeds and pulp. Sprinkle the inside with salt, invert, and let stand one-half hour. Place the seeds and pulp removed from the tomatoes in a strainer to drain. Mix one-third cup of cucumbers cut in dice, one-third cup of cold cooked peas, one-fourth cup of pickles finely chopped, one-third cup of tomato pulp, and two tablespoonfuls of capers. Season with salt, pepper and vinegar. Put in a cheese cloth and squeeze; then add one-half cup of cold cooked chicken cut in very small dice. Mix with mayonnaise dressing, refill the tomatoes, sprinkle with finely chopped parsley and place each on a lettuce leaf.

Vanilla Blanc Mange—Soak a half net tablet in a tablespoonful of cold water. Stir this into a quart of milk that is just lukewarm that has been flavored with a teaspoonful of vanilla extract. Set in a warm room until firm, then put into the ice chest until needed. This dessert should not be made more than two hours before the meal for which it is intended, as long standing causes it to break and separate. Eat with sugar and cream.

Vanilla Blanc Mange—Soak a half package of gelatin in enough water to cover it and at the end of two hours stir into it a half cupful of sugar. Add this to a pint of scalding milk, and stir until the gelatin is dissolved; remove from the fire, strain and flavor with a teaspoonful of vanilla. Pour into wet moulds to form. When firm serve with sweetened whipped cream.

The Robin's Enemy

OF course you remember the story of the Mr. and Mrs. Robin who lived in the old apple tree that was knocked down during the storm. And how their nest was rescued and placed in a safe new location by two interested children.

About a week after the nest was settled in its new place, five tiny little robins pecked their way out of the shells and opened their mouths for food. As you can quite imagine, Mr. and Mrs. Robin were very proud of their babies and happily set to work to find the choicest worms and the tenderest food.

For several days Mr. Robin foraged for food and Mrs. Robin sheltered the babies and fed them tenderly. But as the babies grew bigger their appetites grew, too, and poor Mr. Robin grew quite thin and pecked hunting so much food.

"I think I'll help you today," announced Mrs. Robin, "the children will be quite safe and I am sure I can get some nice fat worms in that garden nearby."

So with Mr. Robin she flew down to the garden and they scratched and dug industriously. Twice they flew back to the nest with food for the babies.

Now I think one more trip and they will have had quite enough for breakfast," Mrs. Robin announced, after she had fed them carefully, "then I will stay and guard them all morning." So down to the garden she flew again.

Now, all this time, unnoticed by the robins, two squatty blackbirds had perched on a nearby tree.

"Look at that robin's nest over there," said one blackbird eagerly, "there are five little robins and their mother has left them; I think we might as well have those birds as not."

"Too late now," said the other blackbird, "their mother is coming back."

"Let's watch," said the first blackbird, "maybe she will go away again."

So they watched carefully. Sure enough the mother did go away for her third trip for worms.

Hardly had she left the nest when the boldest blackbird darted down towards the five defenseless little robins.

Out of the corner of her eye the watchful Mrs. Robin noticed a black streak. "Come back quick, there is danger!" she shouted to her mate. Quick as a flash they both darted back towards the nest.

Close, oh so close, to their beloved babies, the blackbird hung ready to snatch his prey, but Mr. Robin was too quick for him. Without any ceremony he darted up to the blackbird's neck and bit him so hard that the blackbird was willing enough to change his mind about kidnapping the robin babies.

He turned and fled. Upon a nearby telegraph pole he settled to smooth his feathers. "Dear me, that robin was fierce," he muttered, as he prepped his feathers and smoothed his ruffled dignity. "I don't believe I care much for robin babies after all," he decided.

"It's a good thing you don't!" shrieked Mrs. Robin savagely from her nearby nest, "for you will get worse than a bite next time."

The naughty Mr. Blackbird pretended not to hear, but he carefully avoided the robin's nest for the rest of the summer.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am 11 years old.

(1) Will you please tell me some remedy for dandruff? My hair is thin and not long, caused by dandruff.

(2) What name would you suggest for a new park in a small town?

(3) Will you please give me a molasses candy recipe?

(4) Please give me a formula for rose beads made from dry rose petals?

DODY.

(1) If you rub a little castor oil into your scalp every night, then brush your hair thoroughly with a clean brush, you will see an improvement after a while. A little alcohol rubbed into the scalp every two or three days will help dispose of the dandruff.

About every three weeks give the hair an egg shampoo. Give the hair plenty of air—let it hang as much as possible in loose braids.

(2) Now that's a rather difficult question to answer. Why not name it after some prominent man or woman of the town who has done a great deal of good?

(3) Two cups molasses, two cups brown sugar, one-half cup water, one-third cup vinegar, two tablespoonfuls butter. Boil until brittle when dropped in cold water. Before taking from fire add one-quarter cup of spoon baking soda, stir a couple of times to mix thoroughly, then pour on greased plate and pull as soon as cool enough.

(4) Rose Beads of Dried Rose Leaves—Soak dried leaves one hour, put through peanut blade of food chopper three times; leave over night in an iron plate, grind twice the second day and twice the third.

The second day, when through grinding, add to the batch a half teaspoonful of copperas crystal dissolved in water and work in well. This helps to get the jet black color.

To roll the beads, oil the hands with olive oil, then stick the beads on pins and the pins on a pillow and leave over one day to dry.

Oil them once while dry and while still on the pins, and once after stringing, with olive oil. Polish by stroking the strand with woolen mitten on the hand.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Quite a while ago I became acquainted with a young man at a "Fair" given by one of the churches. You, no doubt, know how easy it is to become acquainted with people at such a time without being properly introduced.

Now, I am wondering if I did the right thing by letting this young man escort me home, as I had never been introduced to him, but had known him by sight for a long time, and also that his reputation was good.

This young man is a very good entertainer and I enjoyed his company very much. The only thing I didn't like about him was that he asked me several times to kiss him, which I, of course, refused to do.

Do you think that a boy really likes a girl if he wants to kiss her?

MARY.

I do not think any harm was done when you allowed the young man to escort you home. Meeting each other at the church affair and knowing each other by reputation, was a fairly good introduction.

The young man is trying you out as he tries out other girls. If you let him kiss you, you will not be the first by any means. He probably thinks you are like all the others.

I don't think he is in love with you my dear. A man likes to kiss any fairly nice looking girl, but it's no sign that he loves her. You can at least hold his respect by refusing to be cheap.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Would you please tell me how to make good egg sandwiches?

(2) I am 27 years old. Am I too old to have a beau?

ANDRINE.

(1) A fried egg sandwich is good. Fry the egg, turned, put a fresh lettuce leaf on a piece of buttered bread, then the egg, salt and pepper and another slice of bread. Or, choi hard-boiled eggs, mix with mayonnaise or mustard dressing, and put between lettuce leaves and buttered bread. Chopped egg and olives or pickles makes a nice sandwich. Always combine lettuce or water cress with egg sandwiches.

(2) No, indeed! You are more apt to get a sincere real MAN for a beau at your age than a girl in her teens.

Lumber Firm Sells a Town.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 23.—The Hines Lumber company of Chicago has sold a town, the village of Mason to people living in the town for about $900,000. This deal marks the retirement of the old company from a district where it has operated for twenty years. Last year the Hines company cut the last timber in that part of its holdings, and decided to withdraw from the district.

The letters of the late Prof. Dowden, the great Shakespearean scholar, are, to judge by the published extracts, a real contribution to life and letters. Of De Pachmann, the pianist, it is said: "He has a true delight in exquisite beauty; he is not carried away, but infinitely pleased with his music. He is a king of infinite space in a nutshell—boundedly perfect." His students at Dublin, under his gentle, luminous teaching, acquired an extraordinary real about English literature. Yet, so premissively moral was his attitude to life that he could say: "I am unhappy about this because I see it runs the risk of becoming a mere piece of refined culture, severed from the deeper interests of life." This great scholar was a poet, also, though he wrote only a single book of poems—and of fine quality.

Professor F. A. Ferrett says vol canic activity in Japan will hereafter be on a diminished scale.
